Algorithms.GetCollectionEqualityComparer Method (IEqualityComparer<T>)

Gets an `EqualityComparer<IEnumerable<T>` implementation that can be used to compare collections of elements of type `T`. Two collections of `T`'s are equal if they have the same number of items, and corresponding items are considered in order. This is the same notion of equality as in `Algorithms.EqualCollections`, but encapsulated in an `EqualityComparer<IEnumerable<T>` implementation.

All `EqualityComparer<T>`'s used to determine if individual `T`'s are equal.

The following code creates a Dictionary where the keys are a collection of strings.

Dictionary<IEnumerable<string>, int> =
    new Dictionary<IEnumerable<string>, int>(Algorithms.GetCollectionEqualityComparer<IEnumerable<string>>());
